Session Learning Outcomes

By the end of this session, the student should be able to:

- Students will be able to identify the causes of harmony or contradiction within the Self by analyzing desires, thoughts, and expectations
- learn how right understanding and alignment among these lead to inner harmony.
- Students are expected to reflect on their own desires, thoughts, and expectations to identify instances of harmony and contradiction within themselves.

How to Engage with this Session (The Process)

- Whatever is said is a proposal — do not assume it to be true or false.
- Verify it on your own right, on the basis of your natural acceptance.
- It is a dialogue: first between you and the teacher, then within your own self — between what you are and what you really want to be.

Part A — Key Ideas (Recap)

- Give an example of contradiction in the self.: If a student desires to excel in exams but spends time on distractions instead of studying, the desire and action contradict, causing dissatisfaction and inner conflict.
- Give an example of harmony in the self.: When a student desires to learn, thinks of a study plan, and then follows it, there is alignment between desire, thought, and action—showing harmony.

Part B — In-Class Activity

Activity 1: Self-Exploration and Natural Acceptance for Session 9

Analyze the core proposal on the basis of natural acceptance and self-verification.

Core Proposal Aspect	Naturally Acceptable? (Yes/No)	Current Practice (Living with it?)
Students will be able to identify the causes ...	Yes (Naturally Acceptable)	In Progress / Conscious Effort
learn how right understanding and alignment a...	Yes (Naturally Acceptable)	Self-Observing Regularly

Personal Observation: When verifying Students will be able to identify the causes of harmony or c through my natural acceptance, it leads to internal harmony, clarity of purpose, and unconditional fulfillment.

Living in alignment with this understanding eliminates internal contradictions and fosters mutual happiness in all dimensions of life.

Activity 2: Participation in the Order of Society and Nature

Identify concrete steps to translate understanding into conduct and relationship.

Dimension of Living	Commitment & Action Plan
Thought & Imagination	Ensure desires are guided by natural acceptance rather than pre-conditioning.
Behavior & Relationship	Express feelings of trust, respect, and affection unconditionally in daily interactions.
Work & Production	Engage in mutually enriching work with nature, ensuring conservation and sustainability.

Part C — Long-Answer Questions

Q1. What is the purpose of social projects in UHV?

The purpose of social projects in UHV is to help students develop a holistic perspective and experience social participation. These projects shift students from self-centred thinking to connectedness with family, society and nature. A socially relevant project should contribute to one or more dimensions of the human order: education-sanskar, health-sanyam, production-work, justice-suraksha and exchange-storage. Such projects also connect with the human goals: right understanding in every human being, prosperity in every family, fearlessness or trust in society, and co-existence with nature. Through social projects, students can observe real examples, collect and understand relevant data, and see how a wholesome way of living can support a humane society. Therefore, social projects are not only academic activities; they are steps toward understanding and participating in universal human order.

Q2. Give an example of contradiction in the self.

If a student desires to excel in exams but spends time on distractions instead of studying, the desire and action contradict, causing dissatisfaction and inner conflict.

Q3. Give an example of harmony in the self.

When a student desires to learn, thinks of a study plan, and then follows it, there is alignment between desire, thought, and action—showing harmony.
